retail construction

TOMCO Retail Construction, Inc., a Texas based national retail General Contractor, was created in early 2015 with a vision to change the status quo of retail general contracting by creating unique competition and strengthening the core of women in the construction business. The company's daily construction operation teams and financial management team are controlled by women with years of industry experience. They are also an SBA certified Woman Owned Small Business (WOSB) and corporate chapter members of the National Association of Women in Construction (NAWIC).

Long term relationships have been the key to TOMCO's success. The founders Jennifer Erickson, Tom Motschull & Anne Sauber have built strong working relationships with their retail clients over a 25+ year career in the retail construction industry. Their extensive & diverse work history ranging from finance operations, industry executive positions, project management to jobsite superintendent have helped them build a future client base that was key to launching the company in 2015.

The company holds 14 of the required 21 state licenses across the nation making one of the women founders and company qualifier, Ms. Erickson, a likely candidate to hold the most licenses by a female in the industry. The company also holds various county licenses in Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and New Jersey, expanding their reach to 43 states.

Over the years TOMCO's business partners have included Gap, Inc., Sephora USA, Lens Crafters, Harvest House of Cannabis, Bambu Desserts & Drinks, Sunglass Hut, DalTile Showroom and Edelman Leather Showroom to name a few. The project list since the company's inception has been varied in both size and scope including thousands of remodels, rollouts, white box build-outs, closures and other specialty projects.
